Dotmaker Tours launches London In Slow Motion

“When you refocus on slowness, the city reveals itself as wild, decadent, defiant and deep.”

Dotmaker Tours presents London in Slow Motion, the latest addition to its growing collection of creative, intelligent, often surreal guided walks.

London in Slow Motion is a two hour stroll from Cleopatra’s Needle to Covent Garden. In a city addicted to speed, we’ll reclaim the right to dawdle and the pleasures of observing. From seasonal change to gradual erosion, we’ll enjoy the ways the capital quietly resists the frenzied rhythms of metropolitan life. We’ll notice architectural details and monuments that pay tribute to the slow. And we’ll celebrate those rebels who rail against the rush with their wilful sloth.

London in Slow Motion is devised and led by Rosie Oliver. She says: “I wanted to find a way of seeing past the London that demands our attention – a fast-paced, constantly changing place.” Oliver was surprised by what she found when researching the walk. “When you refocus on slowness, the city reveals itself as wild, decadent, defiant and deep.”

Dotmaker Tours’ other walks include a Rubbish Trip, an historic tour of Chimneys & Tunnels Along the River and the new Thames Bestiary walk. For kids there’s the Greenwich Family Safari and a Secret Mission.
